

Title:	The life of Kumamu	Level: higher
---------------	--------------------	----------------------

Text:	Yukiko told us of the unusual life of Kumamu, who are living goddesses in Nepal. Young girls are taken from their homes with the consent of their parents to start a new life in a temple, where they remain until reaching puberty. The most recent new Kumari of Kathmandu was annointed by Hindu priests on Thursday and taken to a palace in the historic center of the Nepali capital. At midnight, Hindu priests will perform an animal sacrifice involving over 100 animals which the new Kumari will attend as part of her initiation as a "living goddess". She is supposed not to cry at the sight of the animal slaughter. The practice was linked to royalty, though it has continued since the end of the monarchy in 2008. It is a solitary life in the temple without other peers and has drawn criticism from human rights groups and the Kumamu themselves who have experienced difficulty reintegrating into society after their term finished. Interestingly, outgoing Kumamu leave 'by the side door' as opposed to with a fanfare of celebration.
Discussion:	Would you want your child to become a Kumamu? Explain your reasoning.
Words and usage:	Annoint This verb means to give someone holy status. Another verb with which it rhymes, appoint, means to give someone responsibility, and may be used for heads or senior positions in organisations, business related or otherwise.
